Visa

1 • About the visa

What is a visa?

- A visa is originally a kind of endorsement or acknowledgment, and the specific meaning of a visa differs depending on the relevant government policy.
- It can mean “permission to enter” a country, or “a consul’s recommendation for a foreigner’s entry into a country” for a foreigner’s request to enter.
- In Korea, the latter of the two meaning is used in Korea. Therefore, even if a foreigner has a Korean visa, he/she can still be denied entry if an immigration officer finds that some entry requirements are not met.

Entry without a visa

- A visa is a basic requirement for entry, and in principle, a foreigner intending to enter Korea must have a visa. However, a person falling under the following can enter without a visa (Article 7 (2) of the Immigration Act):
 - ① A person who has obtained permission to reenter or is exempted from permission for reentry, and enters the Republic of Korea before the period of such permission or exemption expires

- ② A person who is a national of a country which has entered into the Visa Exemption Agreement with the Republic of Korea and eligible for a visa exemption under such Visa Exemption Agreement
- ③ A person who enters the Republic of Korea for international friendship, sightseeing or in the interests of the Republic of Korea, etc., with entry permission he or she has obtained otherwise, as prescribed by Presidential Decree
- ④ A person who departed from the Republic of Korea with a refugee travel document issued, and enters the Republic of Korea before the term of validity of such certificate expires

Types of visas

- Single visa

- ① Entry is permitted only once within the valid period of the visa.
- ② Valid period: 3 months from the date of issuance

- Multiple visa

- ① Two or more entries are permitted within the valid period of the visa.
- ② Valid period: The following period from the date of issuance
 - Diplomacy (A-1)/Conventions & Agreements (A-3) visa
: 3 years from the date of issuance
 - Visas under a multiple-visa issuance agreement
: Period specified by the agreement
 - Visa provided based on reciprocity or in consideration of other national interests
: The period specified by the Ministry of Justice

2 • Visa issuance procedure

Where to apply for visa issuance

- Embassy or consulate of the Republic of Korea

A visa is issued from a diplomatic mission (Korean embassy or consulate) by the head of the diplomatic mission under the authority delegated by the Minister of Justice (Article 8 (2) of the Immigration Act, Article 9 and 11 of the Enforcement Rules of the Immigration Act).

- ※ In special cases, a foreigner may apply for a visa after receiving a certificate of visa issuance from the immigration office, before a visa is issued by a diplomatic mission (Article 9 of the Immigration Act, Article 17 of the Enforcement Rules of the Immigration Act).

Documents to be submitted when applying for visa issuance

- Passport
- Visa issuance application
- For documents required for each type of visa, refer to the “manual of visa issuance for all visas” on the Hi Korea website (www.hikorea.go.kr) of the Ministry of Justice or the website of the overseas diplomatic mission.
- ※ Where a certificate of visa issuance confirmation is issued, submit it with the visa application form or submit a visa application form with the visa issuance confirmation number recorded.

Note

- The head of a diplomatic mission can only issue visas for which visa issuance authority has been delegated.
- For visas for which visa issuance authority is not delegated, a request for approval should be made to the Ministry of Justice (Article 8 (1) of the Enforcement Rules of the Immigration Act).
- Where a person subject to visa issuance does not submit a certificate of visa issuance, the head of the diplomatic mission may issue a visa after obtaining the approval of the Minister of Justice according to the procedure for requesting visa issuance approval.

Caution

- If a visa applicant enters Korea before visa issuance is granted, it will be assumed that the applicant is withdrawing their application, and visa issuance shall be declined.
- Where a foreigner wishes to obtain a visa after the issued visa is expired or after three months have passed since the date of receiving a visa issuance approval from the Minister of Justice, a new visa issuance application should be made.

3 • Confirmation of visa issuance

- Prior to visa issuance by an overseas diplomatic mission, the Minister of Justice or the head of an immigration office may, where it is deemed specially necessary, conduct a preliminary screening of visa applicants on the request of the foreigner or an invitor of the foreigner in Korea and issue a certificate of visa issuance confirmation or notify the particulars of the confirmation such as the visa issuance confirmation number.
- For foreigners who submit a certificate of visa issuance confirmation or apply for a visa by recording the visa issuance confirmation number (limited to persons who were notified of the particulars of confirmation of visa issuance), the head of the relevant diplomatic mission issues a visa without the approval of the Minister of Justice (Article 9 of the Immigration Act, Articles 17, 17-2, 18 and 76 of the Enforcement Rules of the Act).
